

HPI: Black Roses

By Paul Dale Roberts aka
The Demon Warrior

- Strength and Triumph

Black roses were associated with royalty and power, as they were the only color worn for important events and festivals. Their deep color represents passion, intensity, and depth, which is why they are often used to symbolize strength and resilience. Also, In some Western cultures, black roses symbolize strength, embodying a love that triumphs over the inevitability of death, leading to their popularity.

HAUNTED CAT BA ISLAND - VIETNAM/

Local Legend

The name 'Cat Ba' is believed to derive from a local legend during the Tran Dynasty. The story goes that three women were killed, and their bodies washed ashore on the three main beaches of the island (now known as Cat Co 1, 2, and 3), leading to the name which roughly translates to "All the Women". My father-in-law John Stinson, my half-brother Andres Somprise Soyo and my cousin Paul Leaird all served their time in the Vietnam War. They are all familiar with the legends from Cat Ba Island. Some of the South Vietnamese locals claim they have seen the spirits of the three women walking along the beach. If you make eye contact with any of the ghostly women, you will be cursed. Some locals refer the ghostly women as the Cat Ba Witches. A severe curse from one of these ghostly women could lead to death. You don't want to make eye-contact with any of the Cat Ba Witches.

Historical Context: Hospital Cave

A significant historical site that some visitors find "eerie" is the Hospital Cave. During the Vietnam War, this secret, bomb-proof hospital and safe house for Viet Cong leaders was built inside a large cave high up a limestone karst. It was designed to be invisible from the ground or air and was abandoned after the war in 1975. Visitors to the now-empty concrete rooms have described the interior as spooky, especially when exploring without a guide or other people present. Shadow people are seen moving about in these empty rooms. Some visitors claim that they hear disembodied whispering.

Possible Haunting at Coron Island?

While Coron Island in the Philippines is famous for its stunning natural beauty, shipwrecks, and clear waters, it's primarily known as a top tourist spot for diving and relaxation. A few ghost hunters and scuba divers disagree. Some ghosthunters say that there is a haunting presence at WWII Japanese shipwreck sites. One story is from scuba diver local Bayani Valencia.

Bayani says that when he went scuba diving in and around Coron Island, he saw what looked like a World War II munition ship with Japanese sailors working and staying busy on the deck. Bayani is familiar with various WWII ships, since he was a history buff in college and fascinated with ships of all eras. As he watched this munition ship, it started to fade out. The whole ship and crew just vanished. Bayani says that this was a ghost ship. Bayani has been back scuba diving at Coron Island, hoping to encounter the ghost ship once more.

DOLOMITE MOUNTAIN RANGE

The Adamello Brenta region, like much of the Dolomites mountain range, has a deep cultural heritage with many ancient tales. Let's take a look at the region first, before we get into the esoteric history of this region. The Adamello Brenta region is famous for the Brenta Dolomites, which are a spectacular and unique part of the Dolomites mountain range, known for their jagged limestone peaks, and are protected within the Adamello Brenta Nature Park which is a UNESCO Global Geopark. The Dolomites take their name from the carbonate rock Dolomite. Dolomite was named after the 18th-century French mineralogist Déodat Gratet de Dolomieu (1750–1801), who was the first to describe the mineral. I can only wonder if the Dolomite mineral attracts strange UFO/UAP phenomena?

UFO/UAP SIGHTINGS

There are reports on UFO/UAP sightings in the Dolomites, Italy, with recent social media buzz, as late as 2025 of seeing strange lights in the Dolomites mountain ranges that extend into the Adamello Brenta Natural Park. There is a Porsche driving video featuring a potential "UFO," that is flying close to the Porsche. Lorenzo Marino mentions that he saw strange orbs flying in and out from the trees at the Adamello Brenta Natural Park and super bright lights emitting from the trees. Lorenzo believes that there was probably some kind of aerial object that was parked inside the tree line. UFOs/UAPs have been reported at the natural park and Dolomite mountain range for many years. There are historical reports of mysterious lights and objects in this area of Italy. This shows that the landscapes not only attract human tourists, but they also attract unconventional aerial phenomena. In December 1978, there was a UFO wave in this area. Italy experienced widespread UFO sightings, described as green, red, or white lights flying erratically, some of the UFO/UAPs had donut shapes, boomerang shapes and triangles. A few of the UFOs shot down beams of light, as if they were looking for something. The Dolomites, a UNESCO World Heritage site, are famous for their dramatic peaks (like the Tre Cime di Lavaredo) and unique beauty, making them prime locations for unusual sights, whether natural phenomena, mysterious drones, or potential unidentified objects.

ABANDONED VILLAGES

The park also contains abandoned medieval villages like Cerana and Irone, deserted due to the plague in the 1600s. These empty shells of former thriving communities create a "hollow feeling" and an "unsettling atmosphere" that lends itself to a general sense of spookiness and ghost town analogies. Visitors to the site have reported hearing mysterious whistling sounds. Some people have seen mysterious figures walking around an abandoned village and disappearing. Strange orbs are seen flying around the village and some of the orbs are seen shooting into the night sky. A visitor to a village saw a woman dressed in period clothing. This strange woman was trying to entice the visitor to follow her. The visitor stood his ground and was too afraid to follow this woman. He knew she was a ghost, because she was somewhat transparent and he could see through her. Finally, she just faded away into nothingness.

THE ANGUANES

There are other stories that originate from the Dolomites. People believe that there are mythical figures living in the Dolomite mountain range. A nymph-like Anguanes lives in the Dolomite mountain range and people believe she is a water goddess or witch. You are probably wondering what a Anguanes is. Anguanes are mythical, water-dwelling nymphs from Northern Italian folklore, often depicted as beautiful, cloven-footed women (like goats or ducks) with long breasts, living near springs and rivers, who act as guardians of nature, fertility helpers for women, and can be seductive or dangerous to men, representing a blend of pagan nature spirits and later Christianized figures like witches or mermaids. Legend has it that the Anguanes live with other mythical cryptids like dwarves, orgres and even dragons. Carlo Ricci mentions when he was hiking in the Dolomites mountain range, he saw at a distance a beautiful woman with long dark-hair and topless trying to get his attention and moving her hand and arm to let him know that she wanted him to meet up with her. As Carlo started approaching the woman, he noticed from the waist down she had the legs of a goat. Carlo freaked out and took off in the opposite direction. Carlo knew that he encountered the Anguanes.

GESTURING MEN TO COME CLOSER

It's interesting how the Anguanes and the ghostly woman in the abandoned village were trying to gesture men to approach them or get closer. What would have happened if these men got closer?

THE GHOST OF BISHOP VIRGILIO

The area has a history marked by "raids, murders, assaults and struggles" between ancient noble families, and resistance to Christianization, which has produced legends such as the murder of Bishop Virgilio. Some visitors claim that they have seen the ghost of Bishop Virgilio walking around the park. While the park is primarily known for its stunning natural beauty, geology, and wildlife like brown bears and ibex, visitors interested in local folklore can explore these historical sites and ancient legends. The general atmosphere of the ancient, wild mountain landscape inspires many tales and stories.

HAUNTED ANTIGUA

My sister Sharon Diane Kruger and her ex-husband Crazy Jeff Voshell would at times frequent the Caribbean island Antigua. Sharon says that Antigua is very haunted. There is the La Recoleta Cemetery. This historic cemetery is said to be home to restless spirits, including the ghosts of David Alleno and Rufina Cambaceres. Visitors have seen their full body apparitions. Visitors to this cemetery hear laughter and conversational whispering. Another haunted spot at Antigua is Fort James. Visitors report hearing eerie sounds and seeing apparitions of soldiers in red coats patrolling the grounds. A sea Captain haunts the shipwreck known as The Andes. People have seen the ghostly Captain looking around in the area of the shipwreck. The shipwreck is located at Deep Bay.

- A wide-angle, high-angle photograph of a tropical bay, likely in the Caribbean. The water is a vibrant turquoise, filled with numerous white sailboats of various sizes. The bay is nestled between lush, green, hilly islands. In the foreground, the view is partially framed by several tall, green columnar cacti on the left and dense tropical foliage at the bottom. A small, sandy beach is visible on the right side of the bay, adjacent to a cluster of small, light-colored buildings. The sky is a deep, dramatic purple, suggesting either dawn or dusk, with scattered white clouds. The overall atmosphere is serene and picturesque.

Haunted Gatlinburg, Tennessee

Paul Dale Roberts, HPI's Esoteric Detective
Halo Paranormal Investigations

Gatlinburg is known for being quite haunted, with popular paranormal hot spots, that include the historic White Oak Flats Cemetery (old settler graves), the Gatlinburg Inn (ghostly founder/guests) and Greenbrier Restaurant (Lydia's tragic story). Many local businesses and areas, like the Edgewater Hotel, First United Methodist Church, and even parts of the Roaring Fork Motor Trail, are also rumored to have spectral residents. People have encountered apparitions walking up and down the Roaring Fork Motor Trail. One ghost seen on the trail is the "Irish Logger". The Irish Logger has red hair, a full beard and mustache. He also wears a red plaid shirt that is unbuttoned, blue jeans and is carrying what looks like a log. He will walk up the trail and then simply vanish.

White Oak Flats Cemetery:

Gatlinburg's oldest cemetery, with stories of original settlers' spirits. White Oak Flats Cemetery in Gatlinburg, Tennessee, is known for paranormal reports including shadowy figures, unexplained whispers, strange apparitions near graves, and a general feeling of restless energy, with some attributing the activity to its long history, unmarked graves, and proximity to the Smoky Mountains, though its survival of the 2016 wildfires is seen by many as miraculous. Visitors and locals have claimed to see ghostly figures wandering the grounds or standing silently over graves. Unexplained whispers in the wind are sometimes heard throughout the cemetery. Some experience unsettling visions while visiting the historic site. The presence of numerous unmarked graves is believed by some to contribute to the cemetery's restless energy. Established in 1830, the cemetery is nestled in the Smoky Mountains, adding to its mysterious atmosphere.

Gatlinburg Inn:

Reports of a female spirit, possibly the founder, and other ghostly guests. Psychic Danese Niceman says that the female spirit revealed her name. During her lifetime she was known as Sassy Sally, and she was a lady of the night. Sassy Sally was strangled to death by one of the "johns". The Historic Gatlinburg Inn is known for other paranormal tales, including people hearing disembodied voices and footsteps. People experience unexplained chills, objects moving on their own (like tap water from the faucets turning on), shadowy figures, and reports of a demonic presence or dark energy in Room 11. Guests and staff have also felt the presence of the original founder, R.L. Maples Sr., while some tales mention ghostly teenagers, strange figures by the pool, and even smells of a rotting corpse, adding to its reputation as a haunted landmark in the famously spooky town of Gatlinburg, Tennessee.

Greenbrier Restaurant:

The Greenbrier Restaurant in Gatlinburg, Tennessee, known for its spooky tales, is reportedly haunted by several spirits, most famously Lydia, a heartbroken bride who allegedly hanged herself in the building after being left at the altar, with sightings of a sad, petite woman and unexplained cold spots, while other phenomena include food flying off shelves, spectral figures, and the spirit of a young drowned boy near the bar, making it a popular spot for ghost stories and tours. Lydia the Ghost Bride is also sometimes seen on the stairs. People feel her cold presence. Kitchen staff report food items flying off shelves, and guests sometimes hear Lydia crying and saying: "Mark my grave". The Drowned Boy is a young male spirit often plays near customers' feet under the bar area. Shadows moving, disembodied voices from empty rooms, and unexplained cold spots are reported. The restaurant, a former lodge, has a long history of unusual occurrences, attracting paranormal investigators.

Edgewater Hotel:

Unexplained paranormal activity in Room 413 is a common occurrence. Guests have seen apparitions in the hallway. In fact, guests call the apparitions "The Hallway Apparitions". Guests have gotten used to the Hallway Apparitions. The hotel is also known for some unusual paranormal activity that is linked to a tragic 1972 incident where a 7-year-old girl fell from a balcony, with her parents later dying in a car crash; guests report sightings of the girl in the river, pointing to the balcony, and other phenomena like unexplained noises, cold spots, and objects that move on their own accord. Some guests say that they have never experienced anything and are skeptical of the little girl ghost. The little girl case of 1972 is a strange one. They say that the young girl fell from an upper balcony into the Little Pigeon River, with her parents reportedly fleeing the scene before their car crashed, killing them as well. Why would the parents be fleeing? Did the parents have something to do with her death? Guests have heard disembodied footsteps, doors slamming, and unexplained rushing water sounds. The elevator is known to operate erratically, with reports of it getting stuck or making strange noises. Sudden drops in temperature and lights flickering are common reports. Some guests report seeing a man in a dark suit walking the halls.

First United Methodist Church:

Strange silhouettes and priestly apparitions are seen. The First United Methodist Church in Gatlinburg, Tennessee is reportedly known for paranormal activity. People claim to see shadowy figures walking down aisles or shadowy shapes moving in the sanctuary. Unexplained banging noises from the basement and footsteps heard upstairs have been reported by staff. Some say they've seen apparitions, including priests, within the historic building. The old building's ambiance, especially in the Smoky Mountain setting, contributes to unsettling feelings.

UFOS/UAPS:

There have been reports and sightings of unidentified flying objects (UFOs) in and around the Gatlinburg, Tennessee area, particularly noted as mysterious lights in the sky, with some incidents involving objects described as circles of lights or fast-moving lights near the Smoky Mountains, leading to local discussion and shared videos, even if official explanations sometimes point to balloons or other aircraft. over Gatlinburg, Tennessee

BIGFOOT SIGHTINGS

There are numerous anecdotal reports, local legends, and even themed attractions centered around Bigfoot (Sasquatch) sightings in and around Gatlinburg, Tennessee, and the Great Smoky Mountains. The scientific evidence is lacking, but people still claim to have seen large, hairy figures in the woods and near roads, leading to local folklore, dedicated shops, and even Bigfoot festivals in the region, but sightings are part of regional mythology, not proven fact. When I was driving from Fort Knox, Kentucky to Fort Polk, Louisiana, I parked my car on the side of the road to take a break from driving and to stretch my legs. I recall hearing a strange prolonged howling that I never heard before. I could only wonder if I was hearing the crying sounds of a Bigfoot? Thinking about it in the present time, I either heard the sounds of Bigfoot or the sounds of an injured black bear. As an animal lover, I hope it wasn't an injured bear that fell victim to a hunter's rifle. Bigfoot Field Researchers Organization (BFRO) lists multiple Class A (direct) sightings in Sevier County (where Gatlinburg is located).

NEXT IMAGES: A whole lot of comic book characters created by me (Paul Dale Roberts). You are probably wondering why there is so much comic book material in this book that is supposed to be about the paranormal. Well....let's see, I was once in the comic book industry promoting aspiring comic book writers and artists with my newsletter "Peoples' Comic Book Newsletter". I was one of the top comic book interviewers and comic book reviewers. I was a notorious letterhack with over 1000 letters published in comic books. I still love comic books, and I have created many comic book characters and comic book teams. I even published 1 comic book called The Legendary Dark Silhouette by Jazma Comics. So, here are some characters and teams I have created.

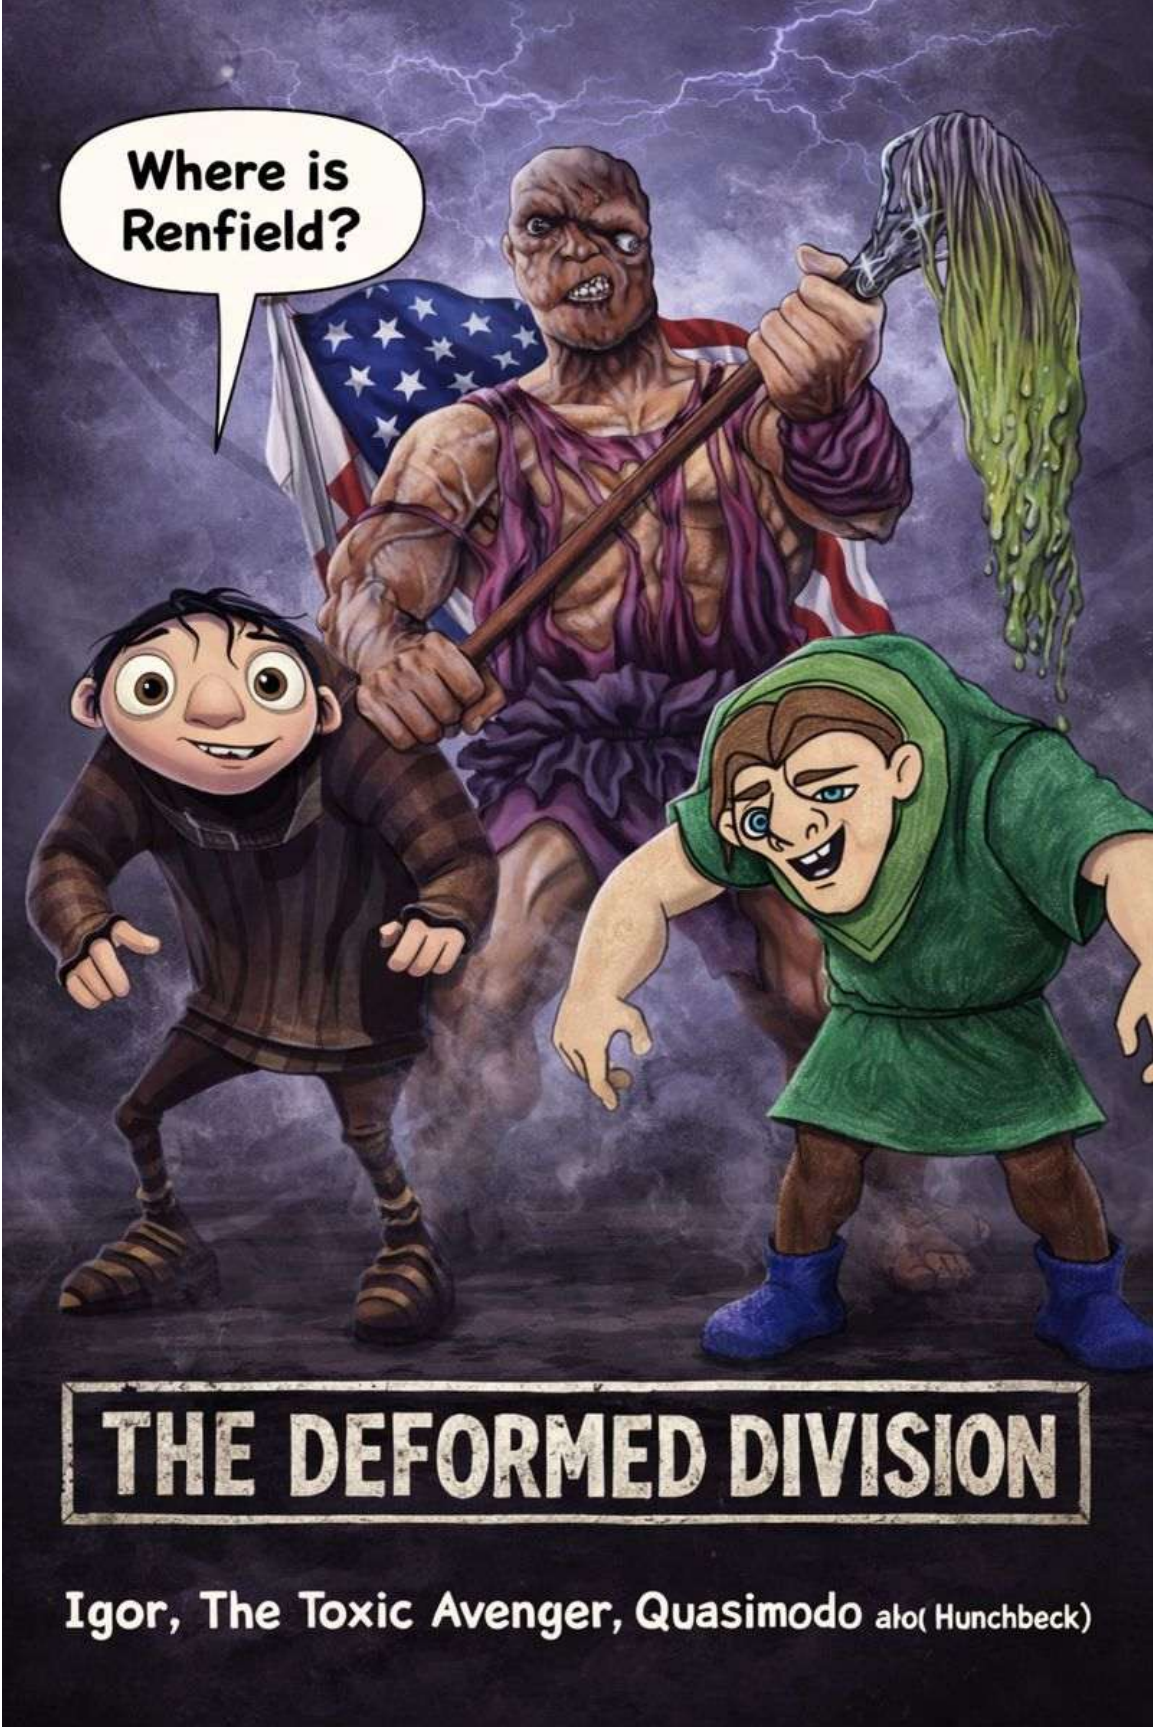

The Organization of D.E.A.T.H.

Team Members are Destroyer, Eliminator, Annihilator, Teacher and Harmony.

D.E.A.T.H. stands for Destroy Evildoers and Teach Harmony. All members of D.E.A.T.H. are vigilantes.

The Organization of D.E.A.T.H. is a “Star Chamber”. Criminals that have beat the system and do not have to spend any time in jail are captured by this Organization. The Organization plays out a mock trial with the suspect they captured. Teacher plays “defense” and Destroyer plays “prosecutor”. If found guilty, Destroyer will play “judge” and the rest of the team plays “jury”. If found innocent, the suspect will be rehabilitated by Teacher and Harmony. If found guilty, the suspect may face execution by Destroyer or Eliminator or Annihilator.

A HAUNTING IN JACKSON

This is my first time experiencing a true paranormal investigation. Call us ghost hunters, ghost busters, ghost tracers, but to be more formal, we can be called paranormal investigators. The outfit is called H.P.I. (Haunted and Paranormal Investigations) of Northern California. The president is the lovely Shannon McCabe. Shannon is a unique individual that also is a vocalist and is involved with vocal lessons, recording, band management and bookings, event planning, floral design and has a website at www.SnMPProductionsCo.com or www.MySpace.com/SnMPProductionsCo.

This talented woman also seeks the truth of hauntings and maintains a skeptical mind on all events that are witnessed by her outfit H.P.I. She seeks a scientific explanation, or when all scientific possibilities are eliminated, it leaves only one answer. The paranormal.

January 20, 2007, Saturday, I found myself arriving at The National Hotel, 2 Water Street, Jackson, CA. Roll Call for H.P.I. Investigators that don't mind having their names disclosed were: Shannon McCabe, President; Brian Colbert; Julie English; Paul Dale Roberts; Mary Casiano; Anne Temple (Spiritual/Psychic Reader); John Wachter; Jonathan Russell; Alicia; Michelle Paykel. There were 28 H.P.I. paranormal investigators and other names will be withheld for their privacy.

The National Hotel in Jackson, California dates back to the 1800s. Guests of the hotels have witnessed many paranormal events. The total number of entities in the hotel have been documented to a big 30.

When I arrived, there was a band playing and patrons gyrating on the dance floor to rock and roll and R&B. One of the songs, fit the mood for us: She Blinded Me With Science by Thomas Dolby. One of the buzzed patrons yelled out..."happy ghost hunting!" The HPI investigators were setting up video cameras in all locations of the floors of the hotel. The lap tops were turned on to analyze electronic voice phenomenon. In one recording you could distinctly hear a female voice say the word 'chill'.

I became familiar with a Gauss aka E.M.F. (electro magnetic field reader). Brian Colbert, another paranormal investigator briefed me on a Tempgun, which detects the influx of temperature. Very good in reading 'cold spots'. When the band and patrons left, the lights went out and the investigators had access to more rooms. In one room called The Bordello, I felt a thickness in the air. When leaving this room and returning perhaps an hour later, the thickness was gone. Armed with my digital camera, I took pictures of various areas of the hotel. The method is to take two pictures of each area, so there is no misinterpretation of the picture taken. The spirits must have been attracted to Julie English. She took many photos with her digital camera and picked up many 'orbs' in her photographs.

Julie English at 1:52am took a photograph of a bath towel in Room 55 and an orb appeared in the photo. She snapped another photo of the bed in Room 55 and another orb appeared. I snapped photos of the same areas and no orbs appeared on my photographs. One unsubstantiated claim was that intuitive Anne Temple claimed that a little girl made her presence known and followed John Wachter. During this incident an electronic magnetic field monitor device was used and witnessed by Michelle Paykel. The little ghostly spirit of the girl that followed John Wachter whispered 'Cindy'. Some of the patrons of the bar were curious on what H.P.I. was doing and one patron, name unknown claimed he was a psychic and claimed an angry man entity was walking up and down the hallway and that he was angry. This entity was mumbling gibberish and was completely incoherent. The psychic patron claimed this was a troubled spirit. Anne Temple followed up to say that he smoked a cigar and that he was yelling 'get out'. The patron psychic said he was 5' 10", average aged man with an ethnic background. Observing the patron psychic, I detected that he was somewhat intoxicated. There was a time he was glass eyed and standing up against the wall. Shannon McCabe asked him..."what's wrong?" He later told me that he receives headaches when there are too many ghosts around. One of the investigators asked him to leave, because we felt he was hindering on our investigations.

Shannon McCabe showed me around to various rooms. She is a seasoned investigator and as we sat in the dark, she would entice the spirit to show itself. While Shannon was trying to detect any Electronic Voice Phenomenon, any kind of noises that were being made, she would make the comment..."someone's footsteps are being heard" or "Paul coughing", so there is no confusion on what those noises are. Shannon enticed a spirit named "Jeffrey" and I snapped one photo over the bed area and captured 2 orbs on my camera. I snapped again, in the same direction of the orbs and there were no more orbs present in the 2nd photo. This was in Room 52 of the hotel. One of the lady workers of the hotel related all kinds of ghost stories to us. She told us how a crashed echoed throughout the hotel, sounding like broken glass or broken wood and when walking into the room where the sound came from, they found no broken glass or wood. She explained that rooms with many sightings, were rooms 61, 47 and 45. One room, a cowboy male ghost is seen and that this ghost once told a little girl with a video camera..."run bitch!" Shannon and about 4 other paranormal investigators sat in that room, trying to entice the cowboy ghost. We had no results in this room. I later sat in this room by myself and felt no presence. I even dared to sit in dark closets by myself and even investigated the attic and no results.

One unidentified woman paranormal investigator took a photo and got a misty white cloud on her digital photo. Michelle Paykel took a digital photo and a white blob appeared on the staircase digital photo. At 4:20am, more digital photos were taken in Room 60 and orbs appeared on the photographs. The final story for this evening occurred in Room 47, the infamous Bordello Room with it's lavish provocative maroon decor and mirrors. I don't know if this was my imagination, but at one time, when entering the Bordello Room, I smelled musky perfume. Now this story is related to me by Mary Casiano, Jonathan Russell and Anne Temple, the Spiritual Reader of www.Bluepantherspirit.com/ They witnessed or experienced everything from a poke in the neck, whispering, hair pulling, tugging on hair, a touch or brushing of the face, hands feeling cold, hair pushed back. Jonathan Russell claims he was sitting on a chair and felt a pressure on his lap and even felt like he was being groped. I went into the Bordello Room by myself and sat in the same chair as Jonathan. I sat in there for a good 20 minutes and experienced nothing. The only thing I experienced in this room, was earlier in the evening, I felt a thickness in the air. Overall this was a fun learning experience and I hope our next investigation into a haunting will produce some exciting results. All digital photographs and Electronic Voice Phenomenon will be analyzed.

The results are pending. For anyone interested in this field! Like the patron told me...."Happy Ghost Hunting!"

HAUNTED LEGER HOTEL, HISTORIC MOKELUMNE HILL AND GALLEGOS MURDER SITE

I am losing track of my days. It's already Friday, November 16, 2007 and that means I have to get ready for my second investigation of the legendary Hotel Leger (pronounced Lu Zhay) in Mokelumne Hill. See their website at: <http://www.hotelleger.com/> The gorgeous Autumn Devich, manager of the Hotel Leger, is preparing for my follow-up story of this very historic hotel. The Leger once was a courthouse, jail and even had a place out back to hang criminals. With this follow-up, I get to spend the whole night in Room 7, George Leger's room (one of the most haunted rooms in the hotel) by myself, while paranormal investigators/scouts Shannon 'Ms. Macabre' McCabe - President of HPI, Chris Grissom - Technician and Tim Hawkins - Lead Investigator of Group B. They will be staying in Room 11, the second most haunted room. Chris only gets to stay for a little while, because he has to work the following day. Autumn set us up with an awesome price for our hotel rooms, they are FREE! Thank you Autumn, you are the best! Will I find my Room "1408"? Hmmm#133;let's see... I love this gold mining town that was founded in 1848. I hope to encounter George Leger's ghost or the Lady in White ghost that haunt this hotel. George is known to hang out at the saloon and some of the rooms. There even have been noises of ghostly children too, so let's see how this investigation goes!

First off, I got my vehicle the 'Ghost Tracker' filled up with some prime gas and picked up Shannon, Tim and Chris. It was a treat for Shannon, Tim and Chris to ride in this jazzy sportscar and I threw on the theme to X-Files for them. Of course, they were all complaining on how cramped they felt in my car and I sort of tuned out their complaints, so I could concentrate on the investigation tonight. As we arrived the lobby was filled with a great crowd of people playing pool, having drinks at the bar and enjoying the inside décor of this historic hotel. I introduced myself to the lovely bartender named Jennifer Sanders-

Metzger, she has been working at this hotel for 3 years. Clairvoyance runs in her family and she is a clairvoyant herself. So the first thing she did was introduce herself to the entities of this hotel.

The entities have been known to toy with people in this establishment, they are sort of mischievous at times. One night when she was closing down the hotel, she saw from her peripheral vision figures of light moving around. Another time, she was setting up a plate setting and walked away. The manager told her to set the plate setting, because it hasn't been done. She knew she set the plate setting, but did it a second time. The second time around after she walked away, the plate setting was missing again. She did it a third time and asked the ghosts to stop playing these games and they finally stopped. Another time, these three kids were playing with their bouncy balls. The balls disappeared and were found later by the fireplace upstairs in one of the rooms, in the shape of a triangle. When Jennifer was closing down the beer room, she saw the bottom of a phantom dress swoosh by her, it was a light colored dress and she was quite startled from this partial apparition. Sometimes the entities will hold the door knob, while she is trying to open a door. Jennifer tells me that when a woman named Debbie actually lived downstairs in the hotel, she would tell George Leger - owner of the hotel to turn the heat on, because it was cold. When asking George Leger (George Leger was the owner of this establishment back in the 1800s - so he has been deceased for a long time) to turn on the heat, a blast of hot air swept the room. One time Debbie was cleaning up after a New Year's Party and the champagne bottles were mysteriously lined up at each hotel room door with party hats placed on top of the champagne bottles. This was done by some unseen entity.

As Jennifer started serving other customers with drinks, I noticed a smiling blonde at the end of the bar. I introduced myself to Trae Parker, a regular customer of this establishment. Trae tells me that she has lived two years in this town. She has seen phantom corpses hanging from the trees out back of the hotel. Trae is quite the character, she calls herself the princess of Mokelumne Hill and she is a 'sensitive'. When she called herself a princess, she had a sly grin on her face. She is able to talk on her portable telephone, because she lives about a block away from the hotel and brings her portable telephone to the bar. Her home is located at Spooky Hollow/China Gulch, which is next to the local cemetery. She tells me that her house is haunted. At times she has felt bound and trapped in her home and she can hear phantom footsteps throughout her house. There has been pictures removed from her house and at times she feels like a female angel follows her to protect her from other unseen forces. She tells me that she assisted police in the woodchipper murder of a woman named Cindy Vanderheim. She goes on to tell me that the population of Mokelumne Hill is 600, but they have 60,000 people buried in this town. There is more dead, than living in this town, she proclaims. She has heard stories from guests of this hotel, where they say that blankets have been held around their bodies and they are unable to leave the bed due to the restriction from the held tight blankets.

This gold mining town was involved in the French/Chilean War, in which militia was called up to fight in this war. Sometimes up to 5 people a day were murdered on the streets of Mokelumne Hill. Bob Barnes, retired Colonel of the California State Military Reserve (US Army) confirms Trae's story.

I met another regular of this establishment, her name is Mary McCartney. She tells me she opened up a door, where the old jail was located and felt a cold breeze as soon as she opened the door. When this happened, she felt a fluttering on her chest. She goes on to elaborate that her ancestors are from this town. So just perhaps, some of her ancestors haunt this hotel and town too. She now lives in the old family home and she can feel the presence of her grandfather and other ancestors in her home. She also witnessed a bottle being knocked down in the bar area by an unseen force.

While I was making my interviews, Shannon, Chris & Tim were busy checking out various areas of the hotels, trying to gather EVPs and digital photos of anything that could be considered paranormal. Shannon makes contact with paranormal investigator/Vice President of HPI John Wachter, aka Vlawde. Vlawde is a lead investigator for Team A and they are conducting a residential haunting investigation this evening. Team A consists of John Wachter, Alicia Perry, Mary Casiano & Jennifer Baca. They are working on a home cleansing and to make the owners of this residence comfortable in their surroundings. On this night Team A and Team B in two different locations, are in constant communication via cellular phone to discuss any findings.

Cheri Garamendi, bartender of this establishment told me that she has felt strange things in this hotel too, but didn't elaborate because she was so busy waiting on customers at the bar. I learn that Cheri Garamendi is the relative of US Politician John Raymond Garamendi, who resides in this County. Samuel Andahl the dishwasher has heard things falling numerous times and when investigating, there was no one around to cause these objects to fall to the ground.

Finally it was getting late and it was time to head back to our rooms. This night we were equipped with two video cameras, 4 digital cameras, 3 electronic digital audio recorders and 1 Listen Up sound enhancer. I don't know all the results yet, so let's see what Shannon says in her FINDINGS and CONCLUSION part of this article.

Trae Parker came by my hotel room and as soon as she walked in she felt a heaviness on her chest. It bothered her so much, she had to immediately exit my room. I'm not a sensitive, so I didn't feel what she was feeling. In fact I fell asleep comfortably in my bed with warm quilts and soft pillows. About 3:06am, I heard footsteps approach my bed. There were 5 steps that seemed to come from the door towards my bed. At 4:16am, my bed vibrated slightly, then stopped. Now to debunk my own experience, perhaps the footstep sounds were not emanating from my room, but from an occupied room near my room, and perhaps the vibrating of my bed came from people walking outside of my room? I am not going to say that what I experienced was truly paranormal, just maybe it was something from my own half asleep groggy imagination. But, who can say what I experienced is real or not real? In the morning, I checked on Shannon and Tim. Shannon & Tim experienced absolutely nothing in their room.

As we left this historic hotel, I can see why people want to stop and see this hotel, this whole town is full of history. This hotel is the legacy of this town's history. In the morning, we cramped inside my vehicle the 'Ghost Tracker' and stopped off at the Odd Fellows Cemetery and Sutter Creek City Cemetery circa for both: 1854. I noticed when I left the Hotel Leger there were an unusual amount of chem trails in the sky. Chem trails that zig zagged, if I was an investigator for chem trails, I would have liked to looked into this unusual display more, but I had to get the Shannon & Tim home. We stopped off at Denny's in Jackson and talked about our investigation of the Hotel Leger.

I finally got everyone home and prepared for a scouting mission on this day Saturday, November 17, 2007. I thought about the email I received from Dana & Jennifer Mierkey, it read:

"I enjoyed reading your well done website. My daughter and I recently went to Hotel Leger in Mokelumne Hill ca. We not only got numerous orbs but a figure of a woman in an oval mirror in room eight an otherwise plain unremarkable room. To the naked eye there is no marks, nothing on the wall or the mirror but the little digital camera screen kept showing what looked like a star. My daughter Jennifer was drawn to the room again and again, she always feels them as do I. In one shot she is drawn directly to the wall, looking that way, feeling her but not seeing her or having a clue until we got home late that night and downloaded photos onto an old 50 inch screen TV. it was quite shocking to see a pretty obvious woman in the mirror. We got interested in this hotel after Jennifer attended a wedding there three weeks ago and came home with photos of orbs. while in one of the rooms with Becky her sister, Jennifer was standing near her, both getting ready for the wedding, the window slammed shut and the door creaked. Jennifer decided maybe she wouldn't spend the night, instead Becky and husband did but didn't comment on hearing or seeing things. there was one or two orbs in their room on the photos Jennifer took. I was very interested in the photos she had so I went with Jennifer and a young coworker of hers last Saturday. the downstairs room was a jail and prior to that a dungeon with a hanging tree out back. The town has an extremely violent past, I would say both Jennifer, myself and the young gal Dani that was with us feel the whole town is at unrest. After talking to a gal who works for the hotel and has always lived in Mokelumne Hill I felt our feeling were validated. The hotel worker said there is a balance of bad and good energy there through out the town and always has been. She states some nights it feels so thick she wont step outside. While taking pictures in the dark creepy basement-jail I silently asked anyone to step forward and the orbs were not only around the air they are on my clothing. Just recently one of the guest of the bridal party, a sister to the bride, Jennifer and I don't know her, we just heard the story she was terrified of a woman in the room. Finally after going through my oldest daughter who went through the bride then to the sister Tracy for the photo it was sent to Jennifer and myself and we were shocked to see her photo of room eight is exactly the same as ours, only difference was hers was shot during the middle of the night in the dark and ours in late afternoon before it got dark. She picked up the lady in the mirror too. It's quite clear on the big screen on our photo. Since you are into this kind of thing I thought you would find it interesting. I am not terribly computer proficient so am sending the third and fourth party email photo from the lady Tracy to you by doing a forward.

Thank you for your time

Dana and Jennifer Mierkey

Lathrop CA"

Through contacts via this first initial email, I invited HPI Paranormal Investigators-in-Training Dana & Jennifer on a scouting mission, they both showed up to my house. I briefed Dana & Jennifer on the email I received, it was in regard to a murder committed by serial killers Gerard & Charlene Gallegos:

"Hi again; her name was Virginia (Ginger) Mochel, she is my mom's little sister. She was 35 when it happened (In 1980, July, I think), I was just 13. She was a bartender at the Sail Inn/1522 W. Jefferson Blvd, West Sacramento and had just closed it for the night and had gotten into her car when Gallego came up to her car window and pointed a gun at her. He had been in the bar earlier that night and saw her. So just her car was left in the lot and she never came home, so the babysitter called police (She had a 4-year-old son, Glenn Mochel, and a 9-year-old girl, Michelle Rubalcava). They took her in their van and I understand after she was assaulted, was killed (Charlene testified that she was angry and defiant and told him to just kill her; also, I once read she wanted to call her children to say goodbye). They tied her up with fishing line, and when they found her some months later, detectives remembered that Charlene had told them they'd gone fishing that day (they were initially questioned in the missing-persons investigation). So that helped catch them. It was a horrendous and devastating thing for my mom to lose her little sister, and also, we were kept from the children by their father, who also was an early suspect. (They were divorced). So we lost that whole part of the family. It's been sad to see my mom go through that, but she hides a lot and seems very strong. Mostly I wish she could see the two children again and have them forgive us all for seeming not to contact them (the mail was returned by Michelle's father) Thank you again. I think she is in heaven too. I hope it's not just that I need to think that, but that she really is. Elizabeth "

Dana and Jennifer were equipped with two electronic digital audio recorders for EVPs and two digital cameras. We jumped in the Ghost Tracker and headed off to the Old Historic Broadway Cemetery first. They have read about this cemetery and wanted to see the cemetery for themselves. I interviewed two ground workers Ashley Fortune & Andrew Pisansky of the NCCC Americorps. I asked them if they have witnessed anything paranormal at this cemetery and both said "no". We left the cemetery and went straight to the Sail Inn in West Sacramento. I used my Listen Up sound enhancer and tried to make contact with Virginia (Ginger) Mochel, while Dana & Jennifer tried to record EVPs and took pictures around this bar. We were undercover, because the bar was full with patrons and we didn't want to make it obvious. Due to the traffic noise and patrons talking, I was unable to establish any paranormal communication with Virginia. All of the photographs were normal and showed no signs of residual haunting activity. Jennifer did her own research on the Gallegos and said that Virginia was kidnapped at this site and taken 20 miles down the road and finally murdered. Due to this fact, the residual haunting activity would most likely extend from Sail Inn (Point A) to murder location 20 miles away (Point B). I decided the best time to actually investigate this site would be after the bar closed and there is less traffic. There is too much noise interference to conduct a good investigation. We left and since Dana & Jennifer traveled all the way from Lathrop to conduct this preliminary scouting mission, I figured I better give them a fun scouting mission, so I decided to stop off at the house on 22nd and H Street. Both were excited, looking at the gargoyles of this old home, as they snapped pictures of this house, they were getting orb shots everywhere. Jennifer even got a picture of what looked like a white mist leaving the 2nd floor window. I was shocked to see so many people driving by the house, snapping pictures and discovered that people have been reading my past article about this house.

Case example, I interviewed Carrine Hansen and her mother Gloria Hill, they read my article and had to see this house for themselves, they told me that they even read my I-5 Killer article about the murder site at I-5/Sutterville. (I took Dana & Jennifer to I-5/Sutterville too). I told Carrine and Gloria that I will be taking Dana & Jennifer to Doreathea Puente's F Street Boarding House. Carrine asks "can I follow you over there?" I smiled and said "more the merrier". We stopped at the F Street Boarding House and there were crows flying all around this house, which made the house even more spookier. The 4 ladies that I brought over here, started snapping pictures and got some excellent orb pictures at this house. One of Jennifer's photos showed 8 orbs around the house. Coincidentally, there were 8 makeshift graves at this house. As they were taking pictures, Robert Gordon a neighbor to this house asked what we were doing. I told him that we were paranormal investigators and I was a journalist. With a smile on his face he took me over to his house. I met his lovely wife Karisten Lockhart and she told me about the paranormal activity in their own home. I asked them if I could conduct an investigation and they said "yes". Robert Gordon read the Sacramento News & Review account of my previous investigation of the F Street Boarding House and was impressed with the report, he was now ready to have an investigation of his own home. As I left Robert & Karisten, I gathered up Dana, Jennifer, Carrine & Gloria and took them to the Sacramento Theater Company and from the pictures they took, they got some more orb shots at this G Street location. Finally Carrine & Gloria headed home and Dana & Jennifer treated me to dinner at the Tower Café.

I debriefed them about the scouting mission and afterwards with a smile, I told them that the Tower Café is next to the Tower Theater, which is supposedly haunted. Jennifer snaps a few photos of the theater. As I thanked them for my dinner, I asked if they had a satisfying day of scouting and both were very pleased. They were both tired and now have a long drive back to Lathrop. I would say it was a fulfilling weekend of ghost hunting. Now let's find out what Shannon has to say about the Leger Hotel. Shannon, take it away!

FINDINGS: I still need to go over numerous hours of video & audio. I did not experience anything first hand, but who's to say there won't be an EVP or something on the video. Stay tuned.

SHANNON'S CONCLUSION: With all the stories from the Hotel Leger's staff I would give this place a 7 on the Spook Meter!

GHOST STALKING IN COLOMA: IN SEARCH OF ISABELLE AND JIGGY

Can you believe this weather? It's November 3, 2007, Saturday and the skies are so blue and the sun is shining down, beating warmth upon the people who are embracing this California Indian Summer. People are walking around in shorts, I am tempted to throw off my t-shirt while walking my dogs Pika and T-Rex, but I attempt to stay modest. This day started like any other day, my friend Mark Greer stops by and loans me a book on ghosts in Pennsylvania and while we discuss this book, paranormal investigator Debbie Talani is in the neighborhood and she wants me to hear some EVPs she picked up at a residence in West Sacramento. I had to cut my visit short with Mark and Debbie, because I had a meeting with paranormal investigator/intuitive Holly DeLaughter. Holly wanted to scout out some areas near downtown Sacramento and Curtis Park. We stopped over at Shannon 'Ms. Macabre' McCabe's home and briefed her on the areas we would do a preliminary investigation/scouting mission at. Shannon gave us her blessing and off we went. Our first stop was:

The Donner Home: This is a huge red brick mansion in Curtis Park. It was one of the original structures in Curtis Park. When Holly lived in this area, she saw a man and woman apparition. Another time she got a whiff of what smelled like bacon cooking and there was no one in the house. Holly tells me that this house is always vacant, as soon as the new owners move in and discover that the house is haunted, they move out as fast as they came in. There were a few times when the realtors would take potential buyers in the house and mold and blood would be forming on the walls while the potential buyers were there. We went in back of this home and did some EVP testing and took some pictures. As I placed my Listen Up Sound Enhancer through the garage area, I heard voices inside. Holly using her sound enhancer and heard a repetition of thumps.

Curtis Park: The whole park is reputed to be haunted. A woman was raped and murdered at the tennis courts. Holly can feel the negative energy that generates from this tennis court.

Sacramento Children's Home: Holly has felt the presences of many spirits at this establishment. Holly and I also stopped over at I-5/Sutterville, where I will do a scouting mission at this location tomorrow. This is the site of a murder scene, in which either Roger Kibbe aka the I-5 Strangler or Randall Woodfield aka I-5 Killer raped and killed their victim. Holly leaned up against one tree and focused on this crime scene and came up with the name of Shirley or Shelley. I believe one of Roger Kibbe's prostitute victim's name was Shelley. Also Holly was envisioning deep water. Perhaps the I-5 Killer took the bodies to an area of deep water along the Sacramento River?

After I left Holly, it was time for ghost hunting in the County of Columa. A quick paranormal investigation team was assembled that consisted of Shannon 'Ms. Macabre' McCabe - President of HPI, Paul Dale Roberts - Ghostwriter/Scout, Jennifer Baca - Scout, Chris Grissom - Scout/Technician and Tim Hawkins - Lead Investigator. We all piled up in the Ectoplasmamobile aka Ecto1, Shannon's vehicle and headed up the road. Our first stop was The Sierra Nevada House. Shannon didn't drive as fast as usual, which caused only a minor nosebleed, I was grateful that the G-Forces were moderate this time around. On this night, we were in search of Isabelle or some may call her Isabella. For this article, I will merely call her Isabella. I interviewed Howard Penn, owner of the Sierra Nevada House. A very nice establishment that has been around since the 1800s. At one time this establishment was a brothel. Howard explains to me that sometimes doors and windows open on their own accord. Sometimes employees have heard ballroom music and it sounded like 20 or 30 people were dancing in the dancing area of this hotel. Stoves have turned on, the refrigerator door has swung open and shot glasses have been known to slide down the bar. Isabella is described to be in her 60s or 70s with long silver hair. She is seen with a long gown that seems to flow. Pink or red orbs have been seen through the establishment and many patrons believe that is Isabella. The most haunted rooms are Room 1, Room 2 and Room 4, also known as the Bridal Room. These rooms are the ones most frequented by Isabella.

Howard tells me there is nothing to worry about, Isabella is a prankster, but she is harmless, there is never any negative energy. Legend has it that Isabella fell in love with a prospector and when she discovered her love cheating on her, she died of a broken heart. Howard explains that Isabella has turned 4 lights off in a row and when told to turn the lights back on, she does exactly that, she turns all 4 lights back on. There are two other ghosts in this establishment, one is of a young boy named Mark or Matthew. Mark either died in the fire of 1902 or 1926. Another ghost is Sara, who died of a childhood disease. Patrons have heard kids upstairs playing kick ball, when they go upstairs to investigate, there is no one there. Lotus the cat plays with an invisible yarn ball, as if he is playing with invisible entities. One time a door opened on its own and a blast of cold air came through the hallway. Many patrons have been touched and one night when people were dancing a woman felt a ghost pass through her body, she immediately thought it might have been Isabella. People say Isabella loves to dance!

For more information on The Sierra Nevada House: The Sierra Nevada House is located at 835 Lotus Road, Columa, California 95613. Their phone number is 530 626-8096. Website is: www.SierraNevadaHouse.com Email: info@SierraNevadaHouse.com

Our final stop was the Columa Café Club. Shannon interviewed a patron named Harold who said he lived in 1960's Haight Ashbury. He dabbled with the occult, that lead him into the dark arts and became possessed by an evil spirit. When eventually this evil spirit was pulled out of him, it felt like a magnet. Harold said he has a great story to tell me and will email me his incredible story of possession.

The crowd was festive at Columa Café Club. The regulars of this club welcomed us with open arms. The karaoke DJ even announced our arrivals and said he had guests here from Sacramento. Songs like Sweet Home Alabama by Lynyrd Skynyrd, Stand Back & Stop Draggin' My Heart Around by Stevie Nicks got everyone on the dance floor. One girl patron got so excited, she tugged on my shorts and thank god I had a belt on, because she nearly pulled my pants down. I took her to the side and didn't ask for her number, but I asked her if she ever experienced anything paranormal in this establishment. She told me that Jiggy haunts this establishment. I asked who Jiggy was and she said Jiggy is a party animal and when the music becomes lively he has been known to appear on the dance floor and get 'jiggy' with it. She said one time it was rainy outside and there were wet footprints on the dance floor where Jiggy had danced and it was the footprints of none of the patrons, because no one was dancing in that area.

Since the atmosphere was so festive, it was hard to interview anyone. So Shannon gave up and since she is a professional singer, started belting out some songs that got more people in a festive mood. Before I knew it, Tim Hawkins, Jennifer Baca and I, were country line dancing. I did some fancy swing dancing with Shannon and Jennifer. Tim blew away the crowd by doing some karaoke to a song called Lobster Rock. I never heard this song, but the song was hilarious. As I surveyed the crowd, I thought I saw an orb fly past the dancing patrons heads, I immediately went to investigate and someone had blown up a French tickler and released it. It shot in many different directions while deflating. I debunked the orb that I saw and identified it as a useful household commodity. I finally got the nerve to go up and sing with some tall blonde, we sang 'Rock the Casbah by the Clash' and then my bravery became tenfold and had Jennifer come up and sing with me 'The Devil Went Down to Georgia by The Charlie Daniels Band'. Jennifer and I kept up with the lyrics and the crowd went crazy. Jennifer and I, felt like rock stars. I could see jealousy in the eyes of Shannon, it was like she witnessed the rebirth of Jim Morrison and Janis Joplin singing in duet. Sometimes Ghostbusters need a break from a serious investigation and it was nice to finally let our hair down and get 'jiggy' with Jiggy! I even took over the mike from the Karaoke DJ and yelled out.. "Sacramento is in the House!", "Elvis has left the stage!" and "Last Call for Alcohol". Of course the crowd again went wild with my witty remarks, if you don't believe me, just ask Shannon! Let's see what Shannon's findings and conclusion were, I bet anything she is going to admit I am the next Rock God! Let's see what she has to say folks!

SHANNON'S FINDINGS: I found Paul to be a terrible singer. Jen Baca to be a great new friend. Chris Grissom will NEVER do karaoke, even if his job with H.P.I. depends on it. And Tim Hawkins can seriously imitate the B52's. Nice.

SHANNON'S CONCLUSION: Paul a Rock God! Please! Basically when Paul grabbed the karaoke mic from the DJ and yelled out "Last call for alcohol at 11:30pm... I said, "oh $#!^, it is DEFINITELY time to make our exit! This is our cue to leave." Last thing we needed was for the locals to turn against us city folk!

A NIGHT AT ZIGATO'S BAR AND GRILLE

When ghost hunters work hard, they also play hard. New Year's Eve 2008 is upon us. Why not do some partying before the big night? After work I picked up Shannon McCabe, President of HPI and Tim Hawkins, Lead Investigator and headed out to Clarion Hotel - 2600 Auburn Blvd in Sacramento, where Zigato's Bar & Grille is located. Before it was playtime, I interviewed the Zigato's waitresses, Rachelle Denise Silva and Stephanie Sanders. Rachelle tells me an interesting story about when Zigato's Bar &

Grille was located at 1910 Canterbury Road. The story that Rachelle tells me is confirmed by Stephanie Sanders.

When they were located at the old building, they would hear what they would call 'weird noises'. They would hear scratching sounds, or the sounds of people in the other room when there were no people in the other room. Some nights they would hear the sounds of scuffling feet as if people were partying. Another time, they heard furniture being moved. Rachelle said that this is the second paranormal experience she had in her life, the first experience was at her mother's place in Sonora. She would hear ghostly footsteps walking upstairs and at times the lights would turn on or off by themselves.

As I finished my interview with the waitresses, I surveyed the festive crowd and could spot out Holly DeLaughter, Chris Grissom and Donna Reynolds. Tim Hawkins jumped up and started doing karaoke to Rock Lobster by the B52s and Bad, Bad Leroy Brown by Jim Croce. The owner did a dedication to HPI by belting out the song Ghostbusters by Ray Parker Jr., and everyone in the house when hearing "who you going to call?" were yelling at the top-of-their-lungs "ghostbusters!"

Donna Reynolds got brave and went up and sang Old Man by Neil Young. Shannon McCabe being a professional singer sang Sex & Candy by Marcy Playground, Bohemian Rhapsody by Queen. She did a duet, with some patron, to Unforgettable by Nat King Cole/Natalie Cole and then she blew the crowd away with another duet with Zigato's owner, Steve, as she did a baby girl voice to 'Baby, it's Cold Outside'. The audience went wild, Shannon even did a cute little dance on stage and the duet was flawless! Bravo Shannon!

There were some inside jokes as the DJ for the Karaoke was named Shannon L. Harding. Shannon Harding and Shannon McCabe have been friends for a long time and have distinguished themselves as Shannon #1 and Shannon #2. They both wanted to be Shannon 1, but someone had to be #2. I was so confused....

Okay, now it was my turn to do a couple of songs up there, but before I did, I interviewed Shannon L. Harding and she told me that when she was 8 years old, she lived in this home that was haunted by an old man that once lived upstairs. When he passed away, there was paranormal activity that started in her home. The house door would be locked and would mysteriously open by itself. Every night that Shannon Harding would go home, she felt like the old man was watching her. She told me that this home was in Nashville, Tennessee. She said the one thing that she will never forget, and it haunts her to this day, is seeing the black silhouette of the old man. Shannon Harding is a definite believer of the paranormal!

As Holly and I, took pictures of this fun event, we noticed that in some of the pictures we were getting orb shots. Did the ghosts of Zigato's last location follow the employees to the new location? Hmmm...a very interesting question. I have noticed that haunted locations near power lines have stronger paranormal activity. I went outside to see if there were any power lines around, there were none. I recently read that a haunted home with slight paranormal activity had more activity when the home became equipped with an electric power generator. Whenever the generator was on, the paranormal activity increased ten-fold. Perhaps we need to take generators to haunted locations and turn them on, to see if the entities will feed off the energy that is produced by a generator. I can see it now, HPI brings their ghost hunting equipment such as an EMF Reader, electronic digital audio recorders, digital cameras, infrared cameras, temp guns, thermal imaging cameras, and an electric power generator. I guess bringing a generator, would be one way to kick start an investigation!

Finally it was my turn to go up stage and I sang 'Living in America by James Brown' and 'Devil went down to Georgia by the Charlie Daniels Band'. I threw in some crazy dance moves and the audience was bewildered and dumbfounded. Later, I took Shannon on the dance floor and dipped her here and there and got her dizzy spinning her around during our swing dancing. So much so, that her dress almost flew off. Did I mention I am the Disco King of Sacramento?

The night ended quickly, before we knew it, it was last call for alcohol. The few remaining HPI members did some brainstorming and discussed doing a spoof on the movie '1408' and calling it '1407'. That is one thing with HPI, we are always planning new and fun things to do for the future. As we headed out to our cars, I mocked Shannon's song and sang "Baby, It's freakin' cold outside" and Shannon would sing back "Paul, you're a dork all the time" and I would come back "Shannon, you need to shut your yap all the time". Yeah we had a crazy, crazy night!

As I drove Shannon and Tim home.....yeah, they talked me into being the designated driver, I made sure we stopped at the supposed haunted home on 22nd and H Street to see if we could see any unusual activity, but on this night the house was quiet. So, quiet, that I had to get the noise level back up in my car called 'Ghost Tracker', I looked at Shannon and Tim and said..."I have a treat for you both!" That treat was playing 'Milkshake' by Kelis and 1-2-3-4 (Sumpin' New) by Coolio on their way home. Shannon looks at Tim and says "Paul, sure plays some off-the-wall songs!" Tim: "He sure does."

Shannon's Comments: We didn't find any ghosts, but we resurrected some old moldy karaoke tunes!

THE ASEVEDO RESIDENTIAL HAUNTING AND THE HAUNTED CITY OF FOLSOM

It's a full moon and the date is October 26, 2007, Saturday. Fellow HPI paranormal investigator and Jazma Online! story contributor Debbie Talani came over to go over some of her writings with me. We take a break and let my Jack Russell Terrier Pika run around out front, when my neighbor Nick Asevedo comes over and tells me more about the paranormal activity that has been going on in his house. Debbie looks at me and I look at her and we both say in unison..."let's do it!" Debbie grabs her digital camera and electronic audio recorder. I grab my notepad, pen and digital camera. Nick's family were all inside watching TV, his sisters, his cousins, his friend Trumane Bell who sports silver plated vampire fangs.....I kid you not.....the guy has fangs! I start the interview process with Nick and he says that many times, he has seen a white blur moving swiftly in the family room, it's been happening a lot lately. The activity started a few months ago. Nick is no stranger to haunted houses, because he lived in a haunted house in Reno. A small boy 7 or 8 years old drowned in the bathtub of his home in Reno. The child ghost became close with Nick. Nick believes that somehow this small boy ghost has followed him to his new residence in which he lives with his father, mother, sisters, cousins and girlfriend Jainey Warden. Lately the cabinets have been found open, when the family makes sure that all cabinets are closed. Beatrice, Nick's sister has witnessed the TV going off and on by itself. TVs in Beatrice's bedroom and the family room have been turned off and on by itself repeatedly. Nick recalls that when he lived in Reno, a plant on the living room coffee table, slid across the table and onto the floor shattering. His mother saw the full body apparition of the little boy in the Reno residence. While we were at the home doing our preliminary investigation, some of the family members and Debbie were feeling cold spots throughout the house. Nick's little cousin Ruben points to an area of the kitchen where he says he sees a little boy. I snap a picture and the picture shows a huge red orb. I snap a second picture and it's gone. Debbie picks up a lot of EVPs, the EVPs say the following:

Paul: Are you here for Nick? EVP: Sigh. (Little boy's voice).

Debbie is talking with Nick. EVP: I got you, I want you. (Male adult voice).

Debbie: Do you like playing hide and seek? EVP: Yes. (Little boy voice).

Debbie to Blanca (Nick's cousin): Are you scared? EVP: Yes. (Little boy voice).

Nick cell phone rings, Nick picks up and says hello two times. EVP: Very distinct, little boy voice..."Hello".

Afterwards Nick cell phones dies and later it reactivates.

EVPs: Inaudible whispers of children.

EVP: Heavy breathing from a child.

EVP: Mysterious growl.

The pictures I snap around the house are of a distinct crystal orb in the backyard, a huge red orb in the backyard, two small orbs near the living room where Nick is sitting. One small orb near Trumane Bell in the living room where he is sitting. Red orb in the kitchen where Nick's little cousin Ruben points at, indicating that he sees the small boy ghost. The way Ruben points where entities are, reminds me of the movie 'Sixth Sense'..."I see dead people." It's kind of spooky seeing this little boy walking around the house, then stop and start pointing at an unseen apparition. I was more spooked out in watching Ruben, than I was after watching Hostel 2 and Mr. Brooks earlier this evening. Jainey Warden relates to me that when she was in the laundry room of Nick's home, she looked up and saw a distinct 'shadow person'. The shadow person that she saw disappeared within a few seconds. I came to the conclusion that Nick may be haunted, because when Nick and Jainey stayed out in Arizona for a couple of months, the place where they were staying at, they had an unusual incident happen to them in the bathroom. The toothpaste tube glides up into the air, moves across the sink and falls to the floor on its own accord. On Saturday, October 27, 2007, I have a meeting with Debbie, Nick and Jainey. Debbie and I go over our findings, we let Nick & Jainey listen to the EVPs and I show everyone the unusual orb pictures I took at Nick's home. I contact Shannon 'Ms. Macabre' McCabe immediately in Las Vegas, where she is doing her own paranormal scouting mission and attending a wedding. Shannon tells me to get a team ready for the investigation. So, as I get results from the full-blown investigation of Nick's home, be prepared to see what we find!

This night, I get dressed up as a Warriors NBA basketball player superstar, with Warriors jersey, sunglasses and carrying my basketball. Why am I dressed up this way? Am I a Warriors fan? Nope, not at all, in fact I don't even watch basketball, I'm just getting ready for Michele Paykel/John Wachter's Halloween Bash at their home. I arrive and there are a zillion Halloween decorations everywhere, a huge talking Frankenstein and some other big monstrous figurines that move, talk and greet you. HPI members that show up are Kristen Sheley in her generic Halloween costume, where you can check off the box if you are a ghost, ghoul, werewolf, goblin, etc. John and Michele are pirates, Chris Grissom is Chris Grissom, Donna Reynolds is a witch (in real life she is a witch), Alicia Perry is a boxer, Mary Casiano looks like a serial killer nurse in scrubs. I gorge down chicken wings and a dozen other finger foods and chase it down with Pepsi, while Chris was making like James Bond and drinking a fancy Martini. While Black Sabbath music is playing, I was stumbling over mock-up coffins and carried on conversations with HPI members about past HPI investigations and upcoming paranormal investigations that HPI is planning. I hung out until midnight and decided I better head off home, because at 9am, I have to be up and ready for my scouting mission to the City of Folsom. I want to know about the shops that are supposedly haunted in this old town.

October 28, 2007, Sunday is here. I'm on the road by 9:00am and I am picking up the woman who has given me a tip that most of the City of Folsom is haunted. That woman is Victoria Roff. Victoria is no stranger to the paranormal. She describes her own experiences. At the age of 12, she lived in an apartment that was near a home that she thought was haunted. When she would walk past this home to her apartment, she would observe the outdoor faucet handle turn on its own and water would come out. She observed this several times and it was frightening for her. At the age of 18, she lived in Vallejo and heard footsteps outside of the cottage she lived in. Her dogs would react to the sound of footsteps by barking. She says that it sounded like someone was walking with boots on. Victoria and her boyfriend observed a wine bottle full of pennies tip slowly on its side. There were so many occurrences, Victoria decided to give the ghost a name and she started calling the ghost Sandy. Sandy was known to bring in cold chills to the cottage, during hot Summer days.

I deputized Victoria as a paranormal investigator-in-training and off we went to investigate the City of Folsom. Our first stop was Mary's Gold Miner Restaurant for breakfast. Investigators need a healthy substance of nutrition in their stomachs before any good investigation. I went for the ham & cheese omelet, biscuit and some fried tatters, that were chased down with a tall glass of milk. We were now off and running, our first stop was:

Planet Earth Rising / PlanetEarthRising.com 625 Sutter Street, Folsom, CA 95630

We spoke with Darrell Trimble, Shirley Caddy/Intuitive, Michael Mansur - Independent Contractor/Clairvoyant Channel Energy Healer and Tiffany Tyler who all work in the store that sells minerals, jewelry, clothing, books, music, Wiccan paraphernalia, Egyptian - Buddhism artifacts, mystical items, metaphysical material. They even have spiritual readings for their customers. Some of the activities these employees say happen are that books have flown off shelves, sometimes items are out of place, Clara the ghost is known to shut off the lights. Planet Earth Rising is built on the site of one of the first Bank of America buildings built in Folsom and other past buildings were the Folsom Telegraph and Orangevale Times building. Shirley believes that there is a portal somewhere in the back of this store. She points out at the discoloration on the wall that she feels looks like a religious icon. Michael Mansur said that one time he felt some negative energy in the store and felt a feeling of dread.

Historic Folsom Hotel - 703 Sutter Street, Folsom CA 95630.

Previously named the New Western Hotel, this hotel was built by a man named Zimmerman for a cost of $7,000.00. To complete the building of this hotel, it needed the installation of the back bar mirror. Samuel Levits, the maker of this mirror asked Zimmerman for the hotel keys, so he can work on getting the mirror ready for the bar. While cutting the mirror, Levits cut his wrist severely and in a desperate attempt to save himself kicked over some keys towards the door to get it open so he can run for help, before he bled to death. Unfortunately, Levits died. Many people claim they can still hear Levits kick those keys towards the door. If the sound of keys is still heard, it sounds like a good case of residual haunting in this hotel. While at this hotel I interviewed Desiree Lhoir - bartender, Kalene Varando - bartender (over the phone) and Randy Hawthorne - bouncer. Randy has heard a piano playing while closing up the bar. Desiree says that before I came to this hotel there was a loud banging on the bar table that startled everyone and then a few minutes later Victoria and I walked through the door. Desiree said it was like if the ghost of Samuel Levits was warning them that they will have visitors. Randy shows me a photo that Kalene took of the regulars and on the far left hand side is the ghostly image of Samuel Levits? I told Kalene she must send me this picture via email. It was the most incredible photo of a ghost I have ever seen. The picture was taken in 2006. Desiree says that sometimes the back doors open on their own accord. Randy explains to me that the hotel was built in 1885 and he believes there are 2 entities in this hotel. Samuel Levits and the Folsom Hotel Lady of the Night Ghost who likes to goose people as they walk by. The Folsom Hotel Lady of the Night has a real sense of humor most patrons say. Randy is a bit of a Folsom Hotel historian as he explains to me that there are tunnels underneath the hotel that were built during prohibition days to smuggle in liquor. Kalene over the phone tells me that people see faces in the mirrors. Some patrons have seen shadowy figures walk by and disappear. Other patrons feel a presence on the bar stool next to them. There are noises mysteriously coming from the bar, when there is no one around. Bottles at times fall from the bar shelf. Kalene was once touched on her back and has seen shadowy figures dart around with her peripheral vision. Kalene has worked at the hotel for 2 years and tells me that in the basement there is an identical bar as to the bar we are sitting at. Then Kalene describes the days when the hotel was used as a brothel. There is a lot of history at the Historic Folsom Hotel and as I walked away, Randy stops me and tells me that Folsom Lake Bowl is also haunted by a ghost called Mary the Ghost. Randy has actually seen Mary the Ghost and describes her as a small petite woman and that one night at this bar, he approached her and she vanished in front of his eyes.

Snyder's House of Jade - 709 Sutter Street, Folsom, CA 95630 houseofjade@comcast.net

At this establishment I interviewed Ken Snyder and Irene Snyder, owners. Irene describes how a medium came to their shop and looked at a singing bowl and knew who made it and started describing the makers, two old Korean men. The medium was from out of town and was brought here by the police to solve a murder. The murder was solved, she located the victim's body in Granite Bay using psychometrics, the touching of objects and reading the energy that emanates from a deceased person's possessions. One employee of this store, felt a cold breath on her neck and this store was built upon an old mortuary where they stored bodies and built caskets.

Folsom's Sutter Club

The ghost is named Louie. Sandi Walker - bartender gave the name to this ghost, she had to call him something and Louie sounded like a good name. Louie likes throwing pool cues around, shuts off lights and sometimes sends glassware from the bar flying into open space. Louie is mischievous and loves to harass new employees. Louie is known to get cranky when changes or renovations are made of the bar. Sandi has worked at the bar for 16 years.

Powerhouse Pub:

The ghost is called Kirby. Kirby was the prior owner of this establishment. I interviewed Jamie Sorensen who has been a bartender of this establishment for 2 years. I interviewed three patron regulars named Todd Swode, Thomas (Tom) N. Latimer and Ed Hoard. Legend has it Kirby cursed anyone that would make changes to his bar. No one has challenged the curse. Thomas also knows stories about the Historic Folsom Hotel and said that a female patron was frantic, because she lost her earring and the earring mysteriously appeared on the bar. The female patron was ecstatic with excitement as she was reunited with her expensive and sentimental earring. Todd tells me that he had his own paranormal experience in Modesto. He says that his great, great grandmother made her presence known by sliding a family picture across the wall and then letting it drop, so when someone tells him that Powerhouse Pub may be haunted, he is not skeptical about it. The patrons and Jamie tell me that when I have time, I should interview the owner named Murray Weaver, that he may have more ghostly stories for me. He is the owner of this establishment and another establishment called the Chicago Fire, which is next door.

As I left Folsom and drove Victoria home, with all of the stories and hearing the same stories told by different people and they were all consistent, I would have to agree that the City of Folsom must be haunted and I would like to see a group of HPI investigators do a full-blown investigation of the Historic Folsom Hotel.

As I drove home this evening I get a call. Two young ladies named Jasmine and Murial from Pharr, Texas tell me that their home is haunted. Both of them saw the full body apparition of a little girl. They tell me that their mother was touched on her head by the ghost. They have been touched by the little girl ghost and they have both witnessed dishes falling from the shelves. I tell them that I will get in touch with Dallas Paranormal Investigations to assist them with this problem and have their mother call me to get some more clarification on the activities. Both girls sounded frightened as activity was occurring around them as they were speaking to me.

It was nice to finally get home and relax. Ghosthunting can be an exhausting past-time and I was ready to transfer my written notes into this article and prepare information for possible upcoming investigations from my interviews. HPI has an army of investigators that are willing to take on some of these challenging investigations and when the call of duty presents itself, we are there! A fan named Deb from Reno, Nevada writes in about her own paranormal experience, and you can find her story at my website at: http://forums.jazmaonline.com/topic.asp?TOPIC_ID=465
